Informed Voters – Fair Judges

[CITY] – A groundbreaking civics education campaign led by the National Association of Women Judges (NAWJ), addresses what organizers see as a growing gap in civic literacy in our nation. On [DATE], [NAME OF PRESENTER] highlighted the role voters play in ensuring fairness and justice for all who enter the legal system in a presentation hosted by [NAME OF ORGANIZATION/GROUP] at [LOCATION].

“All across the nation, citizens rely on their courts for fair and impartial resolution of problems and disputes,” said [NAME OF PRESENTER]. “Our system is designed to ensure that politics and special interests have no sway over a judge’s decision, but it is up to voters to keep it that way.”

[NAME OF PRESENTER of FIRM/COURT] spoke with [NAME OF ORGANIZATION/GROUP] as part of the “Informed Voters – Fair Judges” project. The Informed Voters Project campaign was launched in response to increasing efforts by special interests to weaken the courts and tip the scales of justice in their favor.

“Fortunately, people who understand the role of the courts recognize just how dangerous these efforts are to their own liberties and justice,” [NAME OF PRESENTER] said. “When voters support or oppose judges based solely on the popularity of their decisions, they create a threat of political retribution that undermines fairness, equality, and impartiality.”
